Cancel Burning Permits

Six Forest Fires Hit Here Last Weekend

The Department of Natural Resources was kept busy this past weekend as they answered four fire calls on Saturday and two calls on Sunday. The extreme dry conditions in the woods and the high winds of the weekend made the fire danger high, as the DNR canceled all burning permits over the weekend, and until further notice.

On Saturday the first fire broke out at about 10:13 a.m. in Roberts subdivision. This was a grass fire and was under control by the time the equipment arrived. Damage was about 1/10 of an acre.

At 10:46 a call was received of a woods fire where the South Branch and Main Stream of the AuSable meet on the East side of the South Branch. A pumper truck and tractor plow answered the call and it was brought under control at about 11:30. About 1 acre burned due to careless burning of trash.

At 11:45 a call on a woods fire on East M-72 about 5 1/2 miles from the City, about 1/2 mile west of Stephan Bridge road was received. The fire broke out on the Sherman Holey property, when a tractor he was welding on blew up. Holey was taken to Mercy Hospital where at report from Officials he had 3rd degree burns on his face. Over 10 acres of Jack pine were burned along with several pieces of farm machinery, a barn, several old junk cars, and an old shed. The men were hampered by the high winds, but finally brought the fire under control at around 2 p.m. Roscommon and Grayling fire departments sent equipment along to aid in fighting the blaze. There were two township fire trucks, two conservation pumper trucks, two tractor plows, and a skidder plow along with one plane dipping the equipment to the fire.

The Sheriff's Department evacuated several cabins along the river, which were in the line of the fire.

At 3:05 p.m. they answered a call at the AuSable Hunting and Fishing Club, Dam 4, south of Lovells, where careless burning of trash burned about 1/10 of an acre. It was under control by the time the equipment arrived.

On Sunday at about 1 p.m. a fire broke out on the corner of M-72 and the road leading to the Holey property, about 1/2 mile West of Stephan bridge road. About 1/10 of an acre burned before being put out, and was caused by careless smoking.

At about 4:10 p.m. burning at the dump in South Branch township got out of control and burned over one acre before being brought under control by the Roscommon Department.

Moral mushroom hunters should find this week the peak of their activity. A weekend rain and continued warm weather should see Morels in all sections of the County.

Serious canoeists looking for birdlife and wildlife will have prime viewing in early morning on all the canoe trails of Crawford County. All migratory birds are back and foliage has not advanced to the point where it is a hindrance for observation.

Editor's Mailbox

EDITORS NOTE — The following letters are copies written by Walter Confer, Crawford County Democratic Chairman, to the Honorable Philip Hart and Michigan Attorney General, Frank Kelly about the tax structure for Crawford County. We feel they are of interest to our readers.

April 30, 1971

Frank Kelly
 Attorney General
 Lansing, Michigan
 Dear Mr. Kelly:

As Chairman of the Crawford County Democratic Party I have heard a great deal of discussion concerning the plight of the taxpayers in this county and would like your advice as to how we can better our situation.

At present, 68% of this county is owned by either State or Federal agencies thus creating a heavy tax burden on the remaining 32% privately owned lands. The services provided to the residents are not lessened by these factors, but are more difficult to provide as the privately owned property is spread throughout the county.

Recently the property owners of the county were asked to add a new school building program to their tax load, which they have done out of a concern for the future of the children of this county. However, during the campaign to sell the school to the taxpaying land owners, the facts as to the tax structure of the county were brought into the light before the public with the enclosed documentation of the per acre assessment. As a result of this documentation the taxpayers feel that they are being penalized because of the vacant land holdings, in this county, by State and Federal agencies and their extremely low assessment per acre.

At about the same time, the State doubled this county's property valuation. We wish to know what legal steps we can take to raise the State and Federal per acre rate to relieve the taxpayer of their heavy burden. Would you please advise us.

Sincerely,
 Walter Confer
 Chairman of Democratic Party - Crawford County

May 4, 1971

Honorable Philip A. Hart
 233 Senate Office Building
 Washington, D.C. 20510
 Dear Senator Hart:

I am writing this in conjunction with a program which the Crawford County Democratic Party has undertaken; that being to secure some equitable adjustment to P.A. 1917 No. 116 of the State of Michigan and its counterpart in the Federal system.

In essence, this Act provides for payment to counties of 20c per acre of state owned land lying within the particular counties. This on its face would seem not to discriminate against any county in the state, however, our county has the mixed blessing of 68% Federal and State owned land and 32% privately owned land. As a consequence this 32% of the land the owners thereof are staggering under the burden of taxes. As you will note the Federal is a mere 10c per acre. The taxpayers of Crawford County wish to enlist your assistance in adjusting the per acre tax on Federal properties in our county and any "suggestions" to our state legislators from you along these lines would be appreciated. I understand that proposals in this vein are now being considered and if this be true, again we would wish to enlist your assistance.

It is my feeling that when a situation of disproportionate ownership exists as does in Crawford County, an inverse relationship should be used as the criteria, such that at some point of government ownership of land (e.g. 33%), the local government's should receive an increase in the per acre "in lieu of taxes" allotment in a relationship to the decreased amount of taxable private land.

Thank you for your consideration of this matter.

Very truly yours,
 Walter Confer
 Democratic Party Chrm., Crawford County.

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

Here comes the winner! Can he hold that first-place position? Or will he fail? Victory is the most important thing in the world for these youngsters right now. Everything hinges on the outcome of this contest.

Enthusiasm is an important part of successful living. It can stimulate the imagination and inspire the mind. And it can be a contagious thing, too. It can affect your co-workers, your friends and your family. That is why it is so important to instill enthusiasm in any successful organization, as well as in individuals.

Citizen Soldiers

The United States is built on a system of government that draws its strength from a free, self-reliant people and from communities and states that solve their own problems to the extent of their resources. The National Guard is a product of that tradition.

Composed solely of volunteers, the Guard is a military organization that has been in your community probably as long as you can remember. You may know some of its members. Most likely, you have seen them in uniform at their armory or leaving in a convoy of vehicles for field training. These same men work beside you in your community during the week. The distinguishing feature of the National Guard is its dual status as both a federal and state military force. This dual role allows a single group of men and equipment to fulfill two vital tasks — one of national defense and one of assistance during state emergencies.

During an emergency, the National Guard's mission is to protect life and property and to preserve law and order and the public welfare. The National Guard is the only military force immediately available to a community in the event of a flood, earthquake, forest fire or other natural disaster. While many Guard actions to control civil disturbances or riots receive national headlines, Guard activities during natural disaster often go virtually unnoticed. For example, Guardsmen in Oklahoma helped storm-isolated communities by airlifting medical supplies, evacuating injured residents, and also by airdropping some 230 tons of hay to snowbound cattle.

The trained, volunteer citizen-soldiers of the National Guard have been among the first to see action and hold the line during the past generation of national emergencies — World War II, the Berlin Airlift, Korea and Viet Nam. The nation owes them much.

UPSALA, MINN., NEWS-TRIBUNE: "What the country needs most is for everyone to pick up their shovel and start producing an honest day's work. Just maybe, the protesters who are feeding on past generations and the rest of us, may take the hint. A good soaking sweat will make them realize there is a joy in a day's accomplishments without being critical of the other fellow."

Singular Attributes Endow Michigan

By DAVID R. ROOD
(This Michigan Week feature appeared in the May 21, 1970, Manistique Pioneer-Tribune)

Considering the fact that the first half of May produced nothing but cold, wind and rain, it takes a real enthusiast to sit down and write an editorial extolling the virtues of our Water Wonderland.

Yet here we are, spang in the middle of Michigan Week, and if we are going to do any extolling, now is the time.

If you were to name one thing that makes this state of Michigan unique, you would have to say the Great Lakes. These inland seas provide the watery boundaries for the most of our two great peninsulas. They played a prime role in our rich history. They have a profound and beneficial effect on our weather. They serve our commerce and our industry, provide fish for our tables, and sandy beaches for our swimming and picnics. No point in our state is more than 85 miles from one of the four Great Lakes that surround our peninsulas.

There are other things that make us unique. Etienne Brule was making his first visits to this area just about the time the Pilgrims were landing at Plymouth Rock, if you want to talk about history. You can also point to our state's prime role in the Civil War, or talk of the early miners and lumbermen of the north.

Michigan Leads

Michigan has been a pioneer in the related fields of industry and labor, where such giants as Henry Ford and Walter Reuther came forward to play their diverse roles in the automobile's history.

We have led the way in education, with the nation's first land grant college at East Lansing, and the Athens of the Midwest at Ann Arbor.

Our farming is so diverse that we can eat an entire meal composed entirely of Michigan products—if you want to skip the pepper and the coffee, which aren't essential to a well-balanced diet anyway.

These are some of the other things, if you want something to brag about. As for us, when we think of Michigan, we think of the beauty that is all about us. We think of the miles of white sand beaches and the far horizons of our inland seas, or the quietness of deep woods, bisected and traversed by rushing streams, quiet rivers or still backwaters. We think of tranquil backwoods trails, the aroma of the first arbutus, pine needles on the forest floor and the smell of a wood fire.

We think of the beauty that is all about us, particularly here in our portion of this Water Wonderland, and our hope for this Michigan Week is that it will be here for the generations to come to enjoy.

Nearly $8 Million for UNICEF

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—That's a check for $7,845,000 payable to the United Nations Children's Fund in the hands of 7-year-old Annamaria Hernandez. No wonder UN Secretary General U Thant and Danny Kaye, UNICEF's famed "goodwill ambassador", are smiling with her at a ceremony marking the 25th year of the Children's Fund. Little Annamaria represented the millions of UNICEF volunteers, young and old, whose Halloween collections and sale of UNICEF greeting cards helped bring about the largest annual contribution in the history of the U.S. Committee for UNICEF. It was the third straight year that the Committee has raised more than $7 million for UNICEF from non-government sources in the United States.

Pollution Fight Linked to Relief On Depreciation

Depreciation tax relief for industry as proposed by the Administration should not be looked on as a windfall to corporate taxpayers at the expense of the people, but as one way to make it possible for industry to pay for pollution control equipment required by new laws, according to W. P. Gullander, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Estimates of the cost of air and water control devices to industry in the next five years run as high as $52 billion, Mr. Gullander said.

He listed several possible ways for industry to meet the "terrible burden" of installing such equipment and said that "since pollution control involves substantial net benefits to society, the cost should be widely shared."

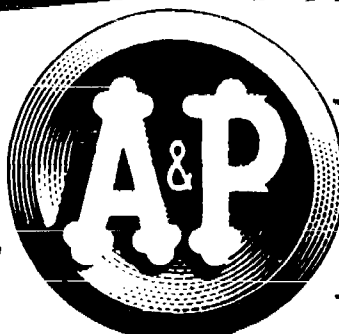

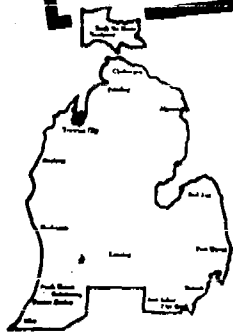

Industry recognizes that it is on the front line of improving air and water quality and he urged Congress to move quickly and to consider all factors in helping companies to meet their responsibilities.

Plant closings, reduced employment, and cancellation of plans for industrial projects on the basis of pollution fears can be avoided, he said, if better government-industry cooperation can be achieved.

Allowing industry to depreciate pollution control equipment more rapidly than now permitted by tax laws is a dramatic example of how the public might benefit from depreciation reform, he said. Among the advantages would be that faster write-offs would be relatively simple in application and would avoid administrative problems and added expenses, he said.

Suffering on the railroad

By Jim Fitzgerald

Goofy Americans, middle-aged and older, are currently suffering terrible fits of choo-choo nostalgia.

They quit riding trains years ago, because they liked cars and planes better. But now the populace is upset because the railroads have despaired of rolling empty seats across the countryside. Daily passenger service is being eliminated or severely slashed all over the country. And people who rode the train faithfully once every 10 years are wailing and moaning and yearning for the good old days when everyone went down to the depot to meet the 5:10.

I remember trains, too. Like a cinder in my eye . . .

Sometimes, in nightmarish flashbacks, it seems like my entire 3-year army career was spent on trains. In 1944, a train took me from home to Chicago, where I was inducted. Those were the glory-days when the high school band and gobs of sobbing relatives showed up at the depot to bid farewell to the brave draftees.

I can still see my 2 best friends, both 4-F, standing on the platform, laughing and holding hands with my girl friend, as I chugged out of their lives. I can't see them clearly, because the train window was filthy. But the bitterness still comes back clearly. My 2 friends were husky, healthy specimens. I was 6 feet tall and weighed 105 and was obviously a poor bet to live until midnight. I never did understand how come I was on that miserable train and they stayed home. Come to think, maybe they weren't holding hands with my girl. Maybe they were holding hands with each other. That window was really dirty . . .

In France, I was transported to the front lines in a 40 & 8 left over from World War I. That's a freight car, built in 1900, capable of carrying 40 men and 8 horses. The men must be midgets and the horses must be rocking. There is no better way to get to know your fellow man intimately. I sat on the floor between 2 fat guys who didn't know I was there for the first 2 days, until I got sick and learned another use for my steel helmet.

It took that French train 3 days to go 200 miles. We kept getting shunted off onto sidings to let higher-priority trains go through. They probably contained generals and Red Cross girls on their way home for more doughnuts. One of the layovers was in Paris, and I still brag to my kids that I spent a night in Gay Paree. Even though we weren't allowed any farther from the train than the nearest bush (nobody worried about pollution in those days).

A year later, with the war over, I was back in the U.S. where my first assignment was riding shotgun on a prisoner train. I stood in the passageway between cars, with a carbine strapped over my shoulder, and prayed to God that the incredible shaking and bumping didn't make the stupid gun go off. I wasn't afraid of the noise or the bullet. I just didn't want to have to clean the gun because I still hadn't learned how to take it apart. Officers kept telling me my gun was my best friend but then they'd tell me to strip my weapon and that seemed like a vulgar way to treat a good friend. So I never did.

Anyway, seated inside the cars were German prisoners of war on their way to catch a boat home. My job was to make sure none of them jumped off in Cincinnati and went on welfare. Trouble came when I jumped off myself to buy a beer in Philadelphia. The train was supposed to layover for 5 minutes but a conductor blew a fuse and it pulled out early. And there I was, with my carbine guarding the depot bar overnight. That was my last out-of-town assignment.

Soon I was sent home for good, in a brilliantly decorated, brand new uniform with which to dazzle my family and 4-F friends. Except the trip was made in a sweaty, 80-year-old Pullman that sucked in soot like a vacuum cleaner. When I arrived at the home depot, my father said: "If your side won the war, I'd hate to see the losers."

Onward and Upward but not by train, thanks.

Paying Political Dues

By Richard L. Milliman

Recently the cry of the offended secretary has been heard once more throughout the legislative halls in Lansing.

It appears that the Republicans charged with electing a Republican majority in the state house and senate are planning a little fund-raising dinner for their campaign coffers, and they have requested the secretarial and other staff help. The Republicans hire around the capitol to buy some tickets.

Anguished cries resulted from some of the staff people. They felt their bosses were putting the muscle on them. And they were right.

But my opinion has always been—why not?

If it were not for the employing Republicans in the legislature, the employed staff people wouldn't have the jobs they hold. What better way to continue on the job than to help their bosses, and his political allies, get elected? And if a little $100 a plate dinner ticket now and again is the way to roll the wheels of self-improvement politics, what's wrong with that?

It might also be recalled that in most cases—not all, certainly, but in most cases—the secretaries and other staff aides in the legislative branch earn higher salaries than their counterparts in other parts of civil service-covered state government, and certainly more than most of their counterparts in private employment in the Lansing area.

Part of the rationale for the higher pay levels enjoyed in the legislature is that the employees live under the political sword; that is, if the political complexion of the legislature changes—as it does frequently—then they have no job security. Personally, I can't agree that political insecurity justifies some of the pay levels handed out around the legislature, but that's the way the story goes, anyway.

The legislature is one of the last strongholds of straight partisan patronage, or the spoils system, left in state government — from the janitors and page boys right on up to the officers of the house and senate themselves.

It takes grease to keep the machinery of the spoils system running, and that grease is financial contribution.

Those who live by the political sword must expect to pay the price, and in this case, it apparently is a contribution. No tears in this corner for the employees; they should help their party.

Another cry is more general around the state these days—the cry to change the focus of taxation from the property tax to the personal income tax. Gov. Milliken and many others—including most local school people—feel that the time has come to change the basis of school support from the local property tax to a state-collected and reimbursed income tax for schools.

There is no doubt that local property taxes in many instances are approaching the stage of becoming confiscatory.

Check almost any local tax roll, and what has happened to it in the past 10 years. No only has the level of local millage risen in many instances, but also the property valuation itself in almost every case has increased by considerable measure, sometimes more than 100 percent.

Part of the property valuation increase results from state-imposed standards aimed at equity within taxing units and between taxing units; that is, attempting to get all property tax payers geared to the same standards. These attempts, although painful along the way in many cases, are justified.

But the income tax will be no panacea; time was not so distant when the state income tax in Michigan was decimated and feared by almost all. Now it is here, and the complaints against it are minute at best. That's because the rate is low, in comparison to the federal tax.

But to do with the income tax all the things that have been suggested will, in the end, only change the focus of discontent from the property tax to the income tax. Property tax relief certainly is needed, but any increases in the method of applying the income tax must be cautious ones.

The real answer, in my view, lies in spending reform, thus controlling the need for taxes in the first place.

Value the Michigan visitor as much as he values us. He's our second most important source of income.

If the figures surprise you, that's all to the good.

It's beautiful to have an industry so much bigger than it looks.

Industry? We call it the vacation "industry" for the simple reason that it can only be compared with the industrial giants as a source of income, taxes, and jobs. But it contributes to our great natural resources, rather than consuming or abusing them.

It's our second most important source of income, and in many ways our best.

The income—nearly $1½ billion a year—is all outside income. It just comes in, and stays here.

The taxes—close to $100 million a year—are free and clear for our use. They are used to the benefit of our residents for such fine things as schools and parks and wildlife projects.

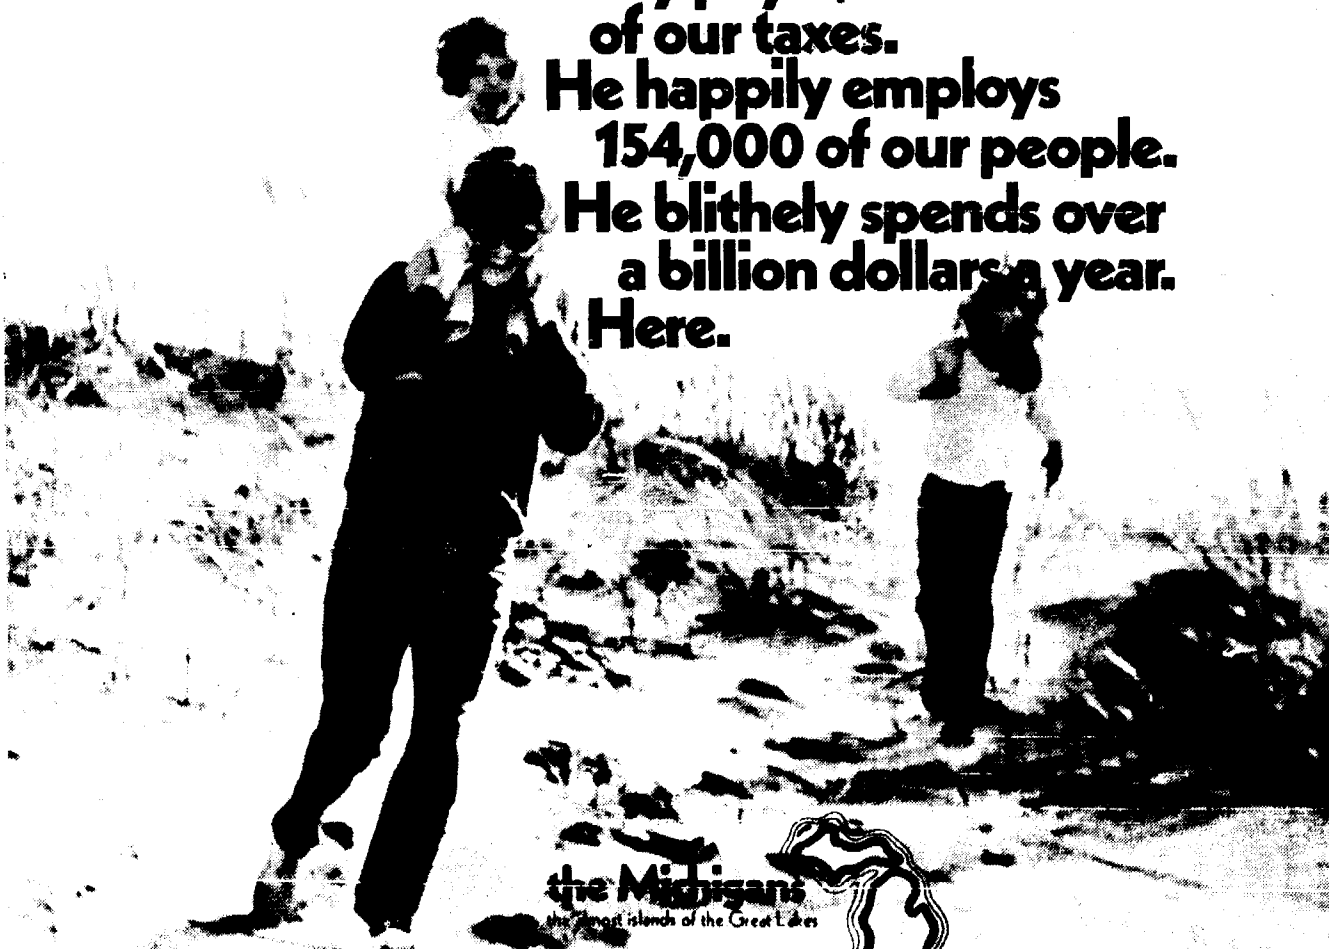

The jobs—over 150,000 of them—are of the kind that generate more jobs by attracting more people to buy from all kinds of businesses.

Without the visitor, life in this home state of ours wouldn't be the same.

He values us for what we are, and helps keep us what we are.

Welcome him for all he's worth to us.

He cheerfully pays $95 million of our taxes.
He happily employs 154,000 of our people.
He blithely spends over a billion dollars a year.

A message in the Michigan public interest, prepared by the Michigan Tourist Council.

by MARY LEE

No doubt about it, this is the age of youth. They've revolutionized our music, art, fashions and moral concepts. One thing they haven't changed is the appeal of beautiful gemstones.

There are some 2,000 identifiable gems of which some 200 are important. But as far as today's fashion is concerned there are just 20 gems that are top favorites.

Although early man did not have modern instruments to identify gemstones, he did put them in the right "pecking" order according to their hardness, durability, sparkle. The stone age ax, for example, was made of jade, the most durable of gems.

Typically, diamonds are the hardest gem; rubies the most chemically inert, and zircons are tops in thermal resistance. Following diamonds in order of hardness are corundum (the sapphire and the ruby; the sapphire and ruby stars; the Linde synthetic stars).

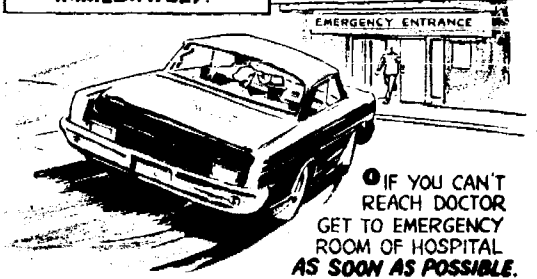

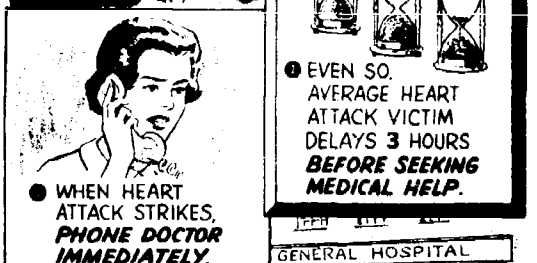

Then comes alexandrite, cats eye, Linde simulated diamonds, the topaz, spinel, beryl (emerald and Linde emerald) zircon, garnet, tourmaline, amethyst and tiger's eye quartz, chalcedony (onyx, blood stone, and sard) jade, peridot, spodumene, feldspar (moonstone), opal, turquoise, lapis, coral, pearl, and shell.

The hardness of gemstones has always been of interest to some companies because of the rigid industrial requirements for cutting textile thread guides, various aerospace components, jewel bearings, and other fine equipment.

For example, Union Carbide began its research in synthetic gem materials back in 1939. As a result of its synthetic sapphires and rubies, the company was able to create special maser and laser crystals for use in science and industry, medicine and space.

Everyone is used to anniversaries. They are usually happy occasions which one looks forward to with pleasure, are enjoyed thoroughly and then sadly passed until another year. The anticipation — the waiting for the next year — is usually the most fun. Such an occasion has just passed for me and the fun was even greater than the anticipation. Many years ago — 16 to be exact — I went fishing with a friend here in Grayling. We did the same thing the next year and the year after that. And always on the same time of the year. Last Friday was the day.

It was a beautiful day, one of those rare days when there wasn't a cloud in sight. The sky was a dark blue, almost like the dark blue we see on a cold winter morning. We never really plan on taking many fish, but we always think we will. So our plans and preparations are great indeed. You might think we were going to be gone several days with all the stuff we pack into the riverboat. A flip of the coin, which I win, so I start out in front and my friend is in the back running the boat. There's not much activity, just a few small fish feeding here and there. The bug they're feeding on appears to be very small, so we change to our smallest flies. Still no luck. So we go to finer leaders. Finally a legal fish. We put it back. Then another. Back it goes, too. I mutter a sassy thing to him. After all, I haven't caught a fish yet. He comments on his greater ability. I comment on the great guiding he is getting, for by now I am in the back of the boat.

We reach our lunch spot. Much consultation about whether to eat then or not. The fish are not feeding too well yet, so we might as well get lunch over with. It's only 11:15 and neither of us is hungry. So we decide to gamble and eat later, hoping that the hatch we are looking for is not on during lunch. That great decision made, we leave a note for some people we were going to meet for lunch and push on. A can of beer sounds like a good idea. I never had anything colder in my life. My friend had a new cooler which absolutely frosted that can. He promised me one when we got back. Said he had two. Sure enough, he gave me that cooler many hours later.

We saw people we knew on the river, in boats and wading. No one had many fish except Jim Wakeley and his fisherman. They had eight. Foolishly, we didn't ask him what he was using. In fact, I still haven't asked him. Everyone agreed that the fish were very selective that day and weren't even too serious about taking a fly. One man I knew said they were feeding on a very small black caddis. He used the true and technical name. He wasn't referring to the caddis as many of us here do.

Lunch time came and my friend hauled out two of the most delicious looking steaks we ever saw. We charcoaled them, slowly. Stretched out or sitting on the ground we talked of many things. Many past trips. Some extremely sad moments this day was an anniversary of, too. And some funny things which had happened. We complained because our eyesight was failing, and even with glasses there were problems tying on the little flies. It was a delightful hour — the highlight of the day. And we didn't even care that fish were feeding like mad in front of us. It was rest time, and the fish would still be there when we finished, or even next year. It had happened before. Finally our day ended. Not too many more fish, but we had had a magnificent time kidding and joking and teasing and fishing. And sunburn. Oh yes, we got burned that day. He even hooked me once, right in the scalp. I wasn't wearing a hat. I threatened to sue him and he said I was getting old and should be able to duck his backcasts.

So now it is all done for this year and the anticipation of our trip next year starts to build. Maybe we'll only make it a half day next year. That's what we say now, anyway.

A waste of time? Perhaps. But wasted time can leave memories to brighten the days when time is not wasted. And memories are the treasures which can make a man truly wealthy. Today I am much richer.

Women of the Moose

The May 17th meeting was called to order with 18 members present. We held our election of officers for the year 1971-72. Those taking office on July 1st are: Senior regent, Maggie Miller; junior regent, Ann Hadley; Chaplain, Rena Failing; recorder, Rose Wales; treasurer, Gladys Fisher. Congratulations to all the new officers.

When we finished our business meeting we balloted on one new member, she was accepted. The meeting closed and we retired to the basement where a lunch was served and wished the new officers a good year ahead.

Well, members, we have all new officers, so let's get behind them and work with them to see if we can make this a real Chapter lodge. One we can be proud of. If we have anything to complain about, let's all get together and talk it over. Men and women in the proper places, not outside our chapter or lodge.

Let us all remember our chapter lodge is only as good as we, the members, make it. Let us make this a real good year for all.

Parents of Crawford County:

I am concerned about the quality of the plays, skits, etc. that our youngsters have been putting on in our high school. They are certainly not very morally uplifting. Do they always have to be about drinking, being out with someone else's wife, etc. I realize that these things go on in the adult world but do we have to promote it in our schools?

Some of these students are doing a real good acting job. Isn't it tragic that we don't want to ask our friends and relatives from out of town to come and see them because we are ashamed of the plot of the play.

We have been encouraging our television people to upgrade their programs so they are fit to come into our homes and yet we are promoting this same thing in our schools. It just doesn't add up.

If this is what we are building a new high school for, I for one would like to unvote my vote. I would like to know how some of the other parents feel on this subject. I'm sure I'm not alone in my feelings.

Economic District Does One Better

By Willard Besserman
County Extension Director

Jerry Morford of Northeast Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission, Rogers City showed some "Onepersonship" regarding a sanitary landfill operation.

The Roscommon County Planning Commission had been thinking in terms of a county landfill operation. Crawford County people had also been toying with a county wide landfill program idea.

Jerry Morford at a Grayling, Crawford Regional Planning Commission meeting, came up with one better by proposing an eight county solid waste management program. The program would entail from three to five landfill sites in the eight county region of the Northeast Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission.

development Commission. The system would involve locating containers at convenient locations throughout the region. Instead of bringing your refuse to the sweet absence of burning dump, you would take it to your neighborhood container. A compact truck would pick up the contents of the container about once a week and take it to the landfill. The landfill may even be in some other county.

The individual who does not want to be burdened with taking his waste to the container about once a week could hire a private refuse collector to take it directly to the landfill for him. The restaurant owner who has a daily supply of doggie bags can also call his favorite garbage collector to take it all away.

Regional solid waste management might seem a little radical for those who have not yet accepted the county concept, but has a lot of merit. I am sure Mr. Morford will make further studies into the idea.

The eight counties in the region are: Alpena, Cheboygan, Alcona, Crawford, Montmorency, Oscoda, Otsego, and Presque Isle.

Emphysema

In this day and age we take a lot of things for granted. In an era when we accept computers, video-telephone and moon shots as a way of life we seldom think about such a simple thing as breathing, said John H. Pettibone, Lansing, president of the Michigan Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Breathing in and out is a reflex action, he said, but think for a moment what it would be like to concentrate on every single breath. Imagine working hard at inhaling and equally hard at exhaling. Imagine having no energy left for anything else. Yet this is the plight of over 200,000 Michigan persons suffering from the lung crippling disease, emphysema, he said.

Emphysema is on the increase, he said. Between 1958 and 1967 the incidence of emphysema deaths in the United States rose 211%. Although no one knows the exact cause of emphysema, medical researchers point to cigarette smoking and air pollution as two of the major contributors. Also, a small percent of the population of this country may be more susceptible to emphysema because of an inherited genetic defect.

Emphysema is a disease which causes the lungs to become enlarged. The name is a Greek word meaning "inflation."

Emphysema doesn't happen overnight. It is a gradual process. The first symptoms may be a slight inconvenience in breathing. Next, a short walk may start to leave one short of breath. Finally, Pettibone said, every breath is agony.

At the present time there is no cure for emphysema. But doctors can help victims of the disease live a more comfortable life through breathing exercises and medication.

A high percentage of those acquiring emphysema are heavy smokers, Pettibone said, so why take chances? If you smoke, kick the habit. If you become winded too easily, it could be an early warning of emphysema, so check it out with your doctor. Your Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association has a free information for anyone who would like to find out more about the disease.

The patriotic theme was the final touch for me. It's about time for people to wake up and begin to appreciate this wonderful nation of ours. Although it is not perfect by all means, it is still the greatest in the world.

Very sincerely,

hairstyle. On the right is Mrs. Bernice Orr with the first place daytime casual hairstyle.

Correction
Mrs. Clifford Peterson is the grandmother of Eagle Scout Doug Harris, not his mother as identified in the picture in last week's Avalanche. Scoutmaster Robert Yoder was not identified in the picture. Also, Mr. Yoder informs us that he erred and it was Randy Calkins who received a Second Class award instead of Rick Norman.

MERCY HOSPITAL AUXILIARY
Following a membership drive tea at the home of Mrs. Jack Alef, old and new members of Mercy Hospital Auxiliary held their regular meeting on Thursday, May 13th.

After a report from Mrs. Carl E. Johnson and Mrs. Barrie Engel, and a discussion period, it was voted unanimously to purchase and operate a gift cart for the hospital.

Auxiliary president, Mrs. Evelyn Williams, appointed Mrs. Alef as chairman and named a committee composed of Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Engel, Mrs. L. C. and Mrs. Galland. This committee has complete responsibility and will work closely with Mr. Ott of the hospital staff in choosing and stocking the cart.

Mr. Ott told prospective workers that the cart could be easily handled by one person but would serve more efficiently if two were assigned to it.

It is hoped that this service will be added to the present volunteer work at the hospital job by desk within a few weeks.

Any permanent or summer resident willing to give a little time at her convenience, to help with one of these projects, will be very welcome. Please call Mrs. Williams or Mrs. Alef if you are interested.
